

December 12, 2013 - Startup framework is a one-of-a-kind comprehensive UI framework that is actually easy to implement and can be reused to create real world . Net applications and web interfaces. All this is due to the fact that it has many ready-made components that can be combined with each other. At the same time, each component has its own scope and has its own unique properties, so each developer can create their own components or use ready-made ones. On the project website, you can find ready-made components that you can easily use to implement your application or web service.
