In February, 2006 the Community Resources for Mental Health (CRM) Education and Support Team was launched to enhance the service offer provided by the Mental Health Teams (MHTs) within the service region. CRM supports and supports both the MHTs and the clinical teams (CTs) within mental health services across the region to maximise evidence-based interventions. The purpose of this presentation is to give an overview of the CRM Education and Support Team and offer suggestions for future developments within the Team.The prevailing theory in the world of big data analytics is that better algorithms and better programming can improve the detection of fraud, and that algorithms can improve the detection of security breaches. It's also well known that using algorithms to analyze vast amounts of data is one of the key strategies that companies use to improve their operations. With that in mind, State Farm Financial Services has released a report that says algorithms have the potential to help underwriters reduce fraud, increase call center productivity, and improve the accuracy of insurance claims submissions. The report contains several case studies of how State Farm Financial and its insurance carriers are using big data to improve the process, and to improve coverage for policyholders. According to State Farm, the idea behind the “Insurance Automated Quality Protocol” or “IAQP” is to let machines examine, sort and analyze large amounts of data to predict how likely a customer will claim, and the results are used to adjust insurance pricing to reward in the most intelligent way possible. In addition to improving pricing, the report also indicates that using algorithms to verify data can help prevent fraud in the first place, by ensuring that policyholders are eligible for what they’
