The technology also allows players to create and share custom visual analysis from their matches in real time. FIFA's official title of the year is on the cover of EA Sports FIFA 20, released March 3. EA Sports' Inside the Game series takes a closer look at the ongoing development of FIFA. FIFA 20 includes three of the most requested features in the development process of the world's most popular soccer video game: Goals from All Angles, Create-a-Team and Protect My Position. GOAL FROM ALL ANGLES The broadest field of view (FOV) enables players to see the ball from any angle on the field, similar to a film director's camera. By strategically adjusting the camera angle, the player can find angles that give them the best look at the ball. With each ball flight, players get a clearer and more detailed look of the action and the position of teammates and opponents. CREATE-A-TEAM Create-a-Team enables players to build their own dream team from scratch. In FIFA 20, players can customize a squad of up to 30 players in a football-focused MyClub experience. Create-a-Team includes hundreds of new cards and hundreds of new items to unlock and collect. These additions will also be present in FIFA Ultimate Team (FUT) Ultimate Edition, which will be released in the coming weeks. PROTECT MY POSITION In FIFA 20, defenders have the ability to now maintain their positioning on the field even if they are knocked off-balance, taken out of bounds or just receive the ball with their back turned. Defensive positioning puts your defenders in a better position to intercept and clear the ball, or to tackle a player in possession to turn the ball away. FIFA 20 Tournaments FIFA 20 also provides new competition modes that are geared toward tournaments. In Quick Play, 10-minute matches can be played for fun or practice. In Tournament mode, matches can be played for up to 10 minutes. In the Ultimate Team Tournaments, FIFA 20's new tournament mode, players earn Tournament Points (TP) by participating in multiplayer matches. With the addition of season playoffs and a World Cup (which will be featured in FIFA 21), the Community Effort Points (CEP) format returns. CEP rewards players for large-scale community-led competitions, like

Enemies within ourselves With the last few games released in the football series, I've been personally thinking 'what the hell is this rubbish?' I've played these new games for fun but after a few hours, I don't know why I've still bothered? I love football, it is in my blood. But is it really that good? I played Football Manager 2009 and it was good, but it didn't set the world alight. EA Sports have gone even further with 2014 FIFA Street Gamer but I wasn't that impressed. FIFA 15, the last game before this one, has fixed a lot of the problems and made that game a far more enjoyable experience, however, I think FIFA needs to be the best game it can be. With another new football manager title, this time taking inspiration from the 90's era and bringing something different to the game, I think that's what this new title is doing. That is definitely something I've learned from EA Sports, there is always a different way to do things. FIFA works the way FIFA works, it's not one game, it's four games or five games all at the same time. Yes, they are all the same and that's what makes it FIFA but they do it differently. My first impressions are that for the first time FIFA looks pretty good. The number updates or small things might be visually pleasing and the graphics may be a bit more than I'm used to. It's very short term, but visually it doesn't look as cheap as it does in many other titles. The players are moving but the whole FIFA environment looks and feels like FIFA. This is something that no one else has done,

EA SPORTS FIFA is a videogame series renowned for innovation. The FIFA series of videogames has gained a reputation as a revolutionary and authentic sports videogame series, among the world's most successful sports videogame franchises. What is FIFA 22? For the eleventh year running the latest iteration of the series will feature FIFA Ultimate Team™, which brings a completely new way to play against friends and opponents online. Then there is the all-new My Club game mode, which allows fans to get involved in the coaching side of the game through crowd control in matches. Finally, our Intelligent Pause brings a dynamic interplay between defender and attacker; with new off-ball prediction across all 24 real-world leagues. What's new? FIFA 22 captures the essence of the real-world sports scene with a variety of new features and game changes which have previously featured only in the most high-profile football titles. All-new, stylised visuals and authentic player-movement are combined with the FIFA 22 engine to bring a new level of play to the world's biggest football league. The most dynamic and authentic touches seen in videogames have also been added to create the most convincing football experience to date. FIFA 22 is the eleventh annual iteration of the FIFA franchise. It is available on 21 September for Windows PC, PlayStation®4 and Xbox One. Moving with the Ball FIFA 22 introduces the All-New Anterior Touch engine. This brings significant improvements to player movement and animation, as well as some new features. These include: Dynamic Player Decisions & Player Instincts The most significant new addition is a new player decision system and player instincts, both of which impact players and the ball. This allows players to influence the ball's direction with the player's own movement. It also gives players greater control over the way they move and apply force to the ball. These decisions are made off-ball, so that players are aware of which way they should be going as they move into space. The engine also gives players more power and control to move off the ball and then release it back to the other players. In addition, players can now affect what type of pass is played by the ball using their body. Familiar Player Control But Improved Interaction The second major new feature is that players are still governed by their normal player controls
