Q: Ubuntu Desktop: How to access a Mac Book Pro monitor? I'm running Ubuntu 12.04 Desktop on a Mac Book Pro with display connected to external monitor. Mac Book Pro has support for multiple monitors, but I don't know how to access my second monitor. In System Settings > Displays nothing shows a connection to my monitor. It's as if Ubuntu is not finding my monitor. I'm looking for some way to access my Mac Book Pro's second monitor. Any help is appreciated. A: Check with: xrandr in Terminal In System Settings > Displays If those don't yield any results, it's probably a driver issue. Gratitude, faith and the "Q Factor" Posted on Feb. 4, 2018 Posted by: Charles Miller, MPH, CA, CPC, CAPS When I see someone new suffering, their suffering reminds me of my own. I am reminded of how grateful I am for all that I have, and I am reminded of the resources available in my life and the feeling of hope that's deep within me. These feelings stir up a legacy of gratitude, faith and the Q factor. Gratitude "The greatest burdens and the deepest sorrows come from being ungrateful." Albert Schweitzer When we are grateful, we are open to receiving and looking for ways to grow. Here are some things to think about as you open to receiving more gratitude, more faith and a greater sense of the Q factor in your life: Accept responsibility for your work and your time Ask yourself, "Who has had a role in the outcome and how did they contribute?" Take one action to show appreciation today Pause. Open to the feeling of gratitude that's already there. Gratitude is always available, even for those moments when you didn't feel it. Additional Tips Remember, you can always change your mind. Take the time to appreciate what you already have. This practice of continual appreciation helps us stay optimistic and grateful for our health and our lives.
