For the past 5 years, Eli has been playing in bands in Los Angeles. He has also written, directed and animated short films and is a professional photographer who works extensively in the entertainment industry, as a producer, director, cinematographer, and editor. Eli currently manages and produces four bands, all of which are in direct competition for the money he makes off the back of them. The band premiered their new music video "Head & Heart" on April 26th, 2019. The first single off of the band's new album, Fear Your Love, is titled "Fear Your Love". The music video features Black Rose – Eli's main production company. The video was shot in Los Angeles and recently released to much acclaim from the media and fans. Q: Methods in C# - why can't I convert 'int' to an object? Why is it not possible to convert int to an object? Conversion from 'int' to object is not allowed. Console.WriteLine(value); object obj = value; Console.WriteLine(obj); Console.ReadKey(); I have no clue why this is not allowed A: Because an object type has a whole lot of unmanaged information that you can't reliably store in a managed int. It's not possible to access the higher level of a sealed class, for example. A: An object is more than just a primitive, it's an encapsulation of the internal state of the object. int is a primitive type that is stored in a 32 bit addressable space. 64 bit integer types aren't the same thing. C# doesn't have any way to convert from a simple primitive to an object type, because you lose all the information about the object, including the state of how the object was allocated, how it was manipulated, and other important pieces of information. That's sort of the point of an object. by a tensor network, we define its vertices as tensors with indices in $\{0,1\}^d$. A tensor network is called contracted if all of the indices of the vertices are summed. A tensor network is called connected if the vertices can be transformed into a one-dimensional tensor network using the Holographic procedure. Assume that we have a connected tensor network in ${\rm adj}(K_{d+1})$ for $d\geq 0$. Then the Holographic procedure applied to the tensor network produces a planar graph Γ with two kinds of vertices, circles and hexagons, in ${\rm ad}(K_d)$. There are m hexagonal vertices, and each of them is connected to 6 circles by 6 edges. If we have a planar graph Γ' with no hexagons, then there is a unique way to connect Γ' to Γ such that the image of Γ' under Holographic procedure is the same as the image of Γ. Let $\
