Through meditation, we are able to become more fully aware of our world and the universe, and, most importantly, of ourselves. When we are able to effectively navigate our life's journey, we are able to reach enlightenment in this lifetime. My Meditation Teacher, Venerable Je Tsongkhapa said: "If the mind is like a kind of candle, illuminating and directing all karma, then the path to liberation for the mind depends on the quality of that light or clarity. All of our worldly and transcendent qualities (such as thoughts, words, and deeds) are but the fiery embers of the light of the mind. The light of the mind is fundamentally good and flawless." The path to enlightenment is as broad as we allow it to be. It depends on our willingness to confront and rewire our unconscious behaviors and attitudes in this lifetime. My meditation teacher, Lama Tsongkhapa, proposed three paths to enable us to experience total freedom from all negative ways of thinking and acting: The Land of No Thought If we can remove all thoughts from our mind, then we will be able to master our emotions and continue to practice on a moment-to-moment basis. Through meditation practice, we can gradually drive out the defilement of negative habitual patterns of thinking and acting. The Land of Object Creation When we no longer associate our thoughts, words, and actions with defining objects and imper
