The Editor component in AutoCAD 2016 provides an intuitive and powerful text experience, which can be extended with the new Automatic Document Formatting. The Document-wide formatting system includes smart formatting tools that apply AutoCAD-defined formatting to existing text, formatting groups, styles and text frames throughout a drawing or a drawing set. Select components can be placed in groups to be applied to the entire document. Additionally, you can apply the same AutoCAD-defined styling to all objects within a particular drawing set. This significantly reduces manual editing, allowing engineers, artists and drafters to achieve great results quickly and efficiently. - Automatic Document Formatting in AutoCAD AutoCAD 2016 offers several new and intuitive ways to add formatting to both static and dynamic text. Select the features you want to use in the Format panel: • Auto-selects the best formatting option for the selected text based on the current settings. • Selects the format group you wish to use for the selection. • Manually selects the format group for the entire drawing. • Applies the format to all text. • Applies the format to all objects in the selected group. You can also create your own AutoCAD-style format groups for any type of text formatting, and easily apply them to other text in your drawing set. - New Text Features in AutoCAD 2016 You can now apply more sophisticated formats to text by using the new Text Style function. Within the available format groups, you can select text styles for individual objects. Selecting the Design tab in the Text Format panel displays the object styles available. You can select a number of object styles from the list and apply them to a particular text component. Or you can apply the base text style to all text components in a drawing set or template. Formatting objects using the Customize Format panel Select the Format panel on the Text tab. In the Customize panel, click the Text tab and then select the desired text component from the Text Style menu. Click in the Format panel and type the new settings you want to apply. Additionally, within the Select Layout group in the Format panel, you can configure the look and feel of your text components. Choose from several text layouts for titles, subtitles, labels and paragraph styles, and easily apply them to the selected text component. Use outline drawing components to enhance your layouts. From the Select Layout group,
