I've been in this situation before and I got a lot of help from other people and a lot of paper. In my case this wasn't enough - I need a person to help me setup a developer environment, build a dev org, build a sandbox environment, create multiple test/test user accounts, create multiple developer accounts, etc. I also need a person who has a deep knowledge of dev best practices. I'm looking for suggestions. Maybe something like/suggesting specific services/products. ===== J_Darnley > I need a person who has a deep knowledge of dev best practices. A "dev best practices" person would be an expensive consultant at your disposal. You're better off building and understanding these things. > I need a person who has a deep knowledge of dev best practices. That's a tall order. Most people would have had many years experience building their own stack. ~~~ flounder002 What makes you think I can't build and understand those things? :) I'm the only one building the stack. Thanks for the response. ~~~ J_Darnley I don't mean to be rude. I'm just trying to figure out how your personal circumstances differ from my own. I only want to have to learn stuff once and expect others to do the same. But then I run into people who want to learn everything twice. I could use your services now. that is the only thing I had to search about... Today I found some words I can't let go, and it made me think of someone I haven't thought of in a while. I feel like I haven't done anything for them, and I'm starting to feel guilt and not sorry about it. And for them, they're always around me, but I couldn't do anything for them. So I'm trying to get over it. It wasn't that long ago, that I thought the same about you. You were always in my thoughts, and I did plenty for you, but I guess it
