What's new in Elden Ring:

I've never been in the higher levels of the fights and the melee combat is disappointingly weak. The best of the two styles I've tested so far is the Duel duel system where everyone in the radius of the AI's target, be it a monster or another human, deals -3 damage and receives the equivalent of 35 points of damage. It is quite fun, though even lower level duelists make most sense online.

Q: Junit not showing any kind of Tests I'm in my very first steps in developing a web application with Java. I have done the first tutorial of the official netbeans tutorial ( that's how i have created my webapp, it works fine, i have uploaded it in my htdocs directory. Then i created a simple Java project with one file that has: package test.project; import javax.servlet.http.HttpServletRequest; import

```
javax.servlet.http.HttpServletResponse;
public class Nasty { / * @param args */ public static void main(String[] args) { //
TODO Auto-generated method stub System.out.println("Reached main()"); new TestClass().init(); } / * @param request *
@param response */ public void init() { //
TODO Auto-generated method stub System.out.println("init()"); } } And in the same package i created one more class named TestClass, its just a class with one method that is the same as my Nasty class.
package test.project; public class TestClass { public void init() { } } So the netbeans IDE when i run this file, shows no error and the text only says: Reached main() But if i run the project with a simple java project, it shows that the class that i'm testing (Nasty) is correctly generated. I have tried to create an @Test annotation in my Nasty class, but it didn't work. I'm stuck right here and after 4 hours of searching the web and experimenting, i decided to ask for your help,
if you have any idea, please don't hesitate.
Thanks. Best regards.
