On the walls are more paintings of John Lòpez de Velasco, the architect. The polygonal chapel of Santo Domingo has a rectangular nave covered with timber and plaster painted in pink, blue and green. It is a work of art, painted in the Spanish style. On the side walls are paintings from the 19th century, illustrating scenes from the story of Saint Dominic. Also here are paintings related to the history of the municipal government of Palma. The bell tower is about 45 metres high, with eight bells. It has eight levels with parapet walls and a clock. The lower levels are canons while the rest of the structure is decorated with Doric columns. Among the works of architecture of note in the walls of this tower is a large marble plaque showing the palace of the Generalife and the four buildings that were part of its gardens, these being called the Alcazaba, the old Moorish palace, the door of the old prison of Palma, the old bullfighting ring, the "lasso of justice" and the "alberca of the judges". The facade of the so-called public building in the Calle del Platju is mostly constituted of a frontage dating from the second half of the 19th century. It has three rows of columns and two floors. A similar public building is also located at the Palma Square, the former Palacio de la Magdalena, a large building which, despite being restored, has important elements (in particular the façade) preserved from the 19th century. Transport Bus The main bus station of Palma is the Plaza de Prim, the bus station serves buses serving other municipalities of the city of Mallorca, as well as services to Palma's old town, the Ciutat Vella and the Alcazaba.
