behind the Nintendo 3DS XL, a new version of the Nintendo 3DS geared towards higher-quality games, along with Internet access and more. Nintendo promised us this version was inbound, and now it's released to the public. From the outside, the Nintendo 3DS XL is exactly the same as the standard Nintendo 3DS. You can swap the shell to swap the appearance. At $170, the 3DS XL is a much closer cousin to the $200 Nintendo 3DS than the original $250 Nintendo DS or $150 DS Lite, but it's not exactly a handheld of the same class. So, what's the difference. Hardware-wise, it's new higher

, Jupiter's Largest moon, has some 2.5x the length of Earth's Moon, which means it takes 12 hours longer to orbit Jupiter than Earth! This one actually has a fascinating and beautiful history and is well worth knowing and studying. 2011 - Largest moon of the solar system, Titan, released clouds of methane, ethane and other gases, which scientists first detected orbiting Pluto in 2006. This is one of the reasons why Titan is also known as "Earth's Sibling" and the second largest moon is found between Earth & Uranus. Titan is the sixth-largest moon of the planet Saturn and is part of the system's family of moons. It has a mean radius about 210 km, a density estimated at 0.6 grams/cm<sup>3</sup>, and it has an even longer rotation period (about 25 hours) than that of Io! 2007 - Dwarf planet Neptune's moon Triton is discovered by astronomers at the National Air and Space Museum's Voyager mission. It takes 15 hours to orbit the planet. The moon weighs about 4.5 billion tonnes (420 billion kg). Due to Triton's distant orbit around the planet, the scientists concluded that it was an original member of the Solar System, having formed when planet Neptune was forming at its present location. On the lovely pictures from NASA, I've just restyled the font & added some colour, they are a bit old now, but I'm afraid the history is accurate! Pretty cool huh! And what's even more amazing and intriguing about this one is that Triton is the only known dwarf planet to have this thick thick atmosphere. Yet something blew a hole in Neptune's own atmosphere and that's why surface and interiors of Neptune are covered in icy- methane slush! Ironically, Triton had always been suspected to contain a liquid ocean of very heavy water (D<sub>2</sub>O) or ice, but now it appears to have been blown completely away! But whether or not Triton ever had an ocean is unknown; it might have been always frozen! Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery! Let's just say... "How the...?!" What interesting names have the moons of Jupiter taken as the outer moons (the letter-D again) are the
