Thank you very much!— The Trump administration on Monday reassigned two officials overseeing U.S. national security in Africa who objected to policies that they considered to be imperialistic and unrealistic, a move viewed as retaliation against one of them. The officials - Lt. Gen. Jerry Richard and Special Envoy for South Sudan Ambassador Michael Tabajon -

had been at the State Department for years, serving in Africa, Europe and the Pentagon. Richard had been the deputy assistant secretary of state for Africa since 2014. Tabajon had been Special Envoy for South Sudan since January 2016. The two officials are no longer being supervise by the assistant secretary for African affairs, who was also a holdover from the Obama administration, one administration official said. The officials were reassigned within 24 hours after a Wall Street Journal report last week that they had objected to some of the Trump administration's policies, including sanctions on Venezuela and bans of arms sales to the regime of Syrian President Bashar Assad. The officials were speaking to the paper on background as Trump administration officials began planning the U.S. response to the mass protests in Venezuela. The officials were told on Monday morning, when they returned to the State Department from the weekend, that they were being reassigned, a senior administration official said. Neither of the officials was told the reason for the reassignment in advance, two separate administration officials said. However, the personnel moves are viewed as a retaliatory step against Richard, who is the top U.S. civilian in the Africa Bureau, a job he started in 2014 when he was U.S.

Ambassador to South Sudan. Richard has been publicly critical of policies regarding Venezuela and Syria that he said are inconsistent with U.S. interests, such as sanctions and arms sales. The administration decided not to keep Richard or Tabajon after a review of senior national security positions c9d1549cdd

Multi-platform (PC, Mac, Linux, iOS, Android) Single player Local (Multiplayer) Netplay (Multiplayer) Story "What was that noise? I hear thunder... and wind... and- Oh my god, I smell smoke." Halfway down the hallway, the odor of smoke began to seep in, the stench of the ancient artifacts reaching my senses. In the distance, I could hear the grinding of metal as ancient machines battered each other to bits. Picking up a torch in my hand, I suddenly felt the cold metal start to heat up. How long have I been standing here? "I'm burning!" I say, barely audibly. For once, something good to hear! Oh, thank goodness. I can finally get out of this place. "Brace yourself!" BOOM "Get up!" a voice calls out. "Stay away from the pile! The moment I find you, you will not get to do that again!" I don't have time to get out of the way. Chunks of ancient metal fly out from the pile, raining down on me. "I'm sorry- Is someone there?" I hear the voice yell. For a second, I didn't hear anything. "Holy, I don't know, I've never felt this before..." I gasp. I hear the voice calling out again. "...talk to me, for crying out loud!" My camera's pulse is going wild. I can't stand this sound, it's too much. I start charging my phone once more, then I hear it. "OH MY GOD!" "Help me! I'm trapped in here, and I don't know how to get out!" a girl's voice frantically yells. Again, the voice calls out. "OH! HELP ME!" the voice screams. The girl's voice begins to crack. "PLEASE HELP ME!" "Hello?" "Hey! Is anyone there?" I look around, but not a damn thing, nothing. I don't see anyone. My camera is sputtering, the lens blacking out. "I don't know..." "Help me! Please, please, help me!" "Hello?" "Is anyone there?" "

"JANUARY 1963 21. Headquarters, 5th Regiment, 2nd Division, New Jersey, received message #6458 from Source/Identification: Lt. Edward H. Hildreth of the Retired Army Staff - JOM [Joint Operations Movements] Task Force. Lt. Hildreth reported that Lt. Thomas Austin from Highway Camp One, having been given the name of Lt. Elwood Cotts [?] of Company B, 3/61 USAR, would arrive in the Baltimore-Washington area on January 5, 1963, via route # 3, 1-3-1-0, from San Antonio, Texas. The Source reported that the information received on Austin was reliable, and he [Hildreth] strongly recommended that any action or activity be undertaken to determine his whereabouts, as he was presumed to be part of a weapons development effort known as Project GINGE [Green Island Group which had developed Project REDCLOVER]. 22. Was receipt of Lt. Hildreth's message #6458 a coincidence, or a communication intelligence (COMINT) intercept? 22.1. Can this information be verified? 22.2. Prior to Lt. Hildreth's message, was HQ, 5th

Regiment, 2nd Division, already briefed on Austin's movements? 22.3. What, if any, relative positions were the Rendition Point for Project GINGE and Lt. Austin during his assignment at Highway Camp One near Loxahatchee, Florida [check?] 22.4. How did Lt. Hildreth, having observed Lt. Austin, pull off the assignment to Loxahatchee, Florida, where Lt. Austin reported, the next day [?], contact [alleged?] Lt. Elwood Cotts at Highway Camp One, for the 1-3-1-0 assignment? 22.5. How did Lt. Hildreth, contacting Lt. Cotts, become alerted to the possible mutiny of the "GINO" [Green Island Group] persons?] (Austin?)? 22.6. Is it possible that Lt. Hildreth's, or Lt.
