Find out more at Monday, May 27, 2015 Selfless | Black | x black (little black) This collection was inspired by an avid reader/beauty addict and one of the main themes she's incorporated into her reads is empowerment and self-care. "I've been reading a lot lately and what I like about it is that it forces me to look at myself and try to put a positive spin on me. I'm not perfect and I'm still learning but I want to find ways to celebrate the woman I have become instead of what I used to be. I've always been a deep emotional person and reading gives me a safe place to work out my complicated feelings." I guess it's no surprise that the theme "selfless" was put on the top of this blog, even without me re-thinking every single tag line. This is one of my favorite looks from the collection- the black and gold checkered dress with the transparent tulle overlay. This floral and lace was the perfect pair to wrap the whole ensemble. There is a lot of talk in this industry about how black is the new neutral, and I think this collection only proves that. The mix of black and gold in this collection was divine. The "x black (little black)" can be worn alone or it can be part of a bold ensemble. The gold meets black wore really well. I'm not going to waste any time and I will tell you what I think about the collection. At first I thought this collection was too polished, because a good chunk of this collection was actually seen through lace, but after reading about the designer's background, it makes sense. Black in itself is a strong color. It can be dressed up or down, and the power it holds in itself won't be overlooked
